HEARS WALLING'S LETTERS

Wife in Court When Love Notes to Miss Grunspan Are Read.

HE SENT HER TO SCHOOL

Object, Girl Says, to Make Her Presentable to His Friends

After Their Marriage. Miss Annette Bertha Grunspan, who is suing William English Walling, husband of Anna Strunsky, for $100,000 damages for alleged breach of promise, continued her story on the stand in the Supreme Court yesterday. To her oral testimony of the affection Walling displayed for her and the hope for the future he held dut to her she added numerous letters and postcards Walling had written to her filled with fervid expressions of love Mrs. Walling was in court and heard them

The signatures on these letters wer not his own, except when he used his middle name, English. Others bore the signatures "Revolutionary" and "Koucteuszki," revealing subjects in which be was deeply interested. The communica tions covered a period from July to October, 1905, when Walling was travelling about Europe in the interest of the socialist cause, and Miss Grunspan, ther a girl of seventeen, was working to sup-port herself and her mother.

Miss Grunspan said Walling had often impressed on her his views of love and marriage, and that she had accepted them "He told me." said Miss Grunspan, "that he was a socialist, and that he believed g girl, when she became engaged to man, ceased to have individual rights He induced me to accept that belief and convinced me that I had no rights over his." Walling wanted to take her from Parts to London, where she could learn English, she said, so when they were mar ried she could speak his own language, "He paid my schooling in Paris and Lon don and my other bills," she continued. "I studied English in Sir Isaac Pitman's school in London and also studied English de portment and etiquette, so I would be presentable to Mr. Walling's friends after we were married.

Miss Grunspan said Walling had fixed the time of their marriage for January, 1965 One postcard Walling wrote to Miss Grunspan was dated at Warsaw and signed "Kouciousaki." It read: "The Congress here is most interesting

I have met the rich and the poor, have entered the homes of the wealthy socialists and they all know me. I beg of you not to work. I would feel like a criminal if yo should do any work. Think of me as of yourself. I hope to receive letters from you each day. Love to you and I kiss you

Another chapter written by Walling in his postcard courtship read: "Everything going well. The revolutionary movement brisk. Write your affairs day by day to me. Don't work, you hear? Write that you are gayer, and it will make me happier. I wish I could see your beautiful smile. Think of me often. I hope to take you to London by November 1. You are such a good little child now that I love you more

We want the critical women of New York to become acquainted with the newest and most charming women's store of modern times.

We want them to know that right here at their very doors can be had the things that they would go to Paris to buy-

Wearing Apparel that is "clever" and "uncommon"-things that one wouldn't expect to find anywhere outside of the "smartest" shops abroad-

The most important couluriers in Paris have been drawn upon and their best brought here for convenient selection-all at sensible prices.

Tailored or Demi-Tailored Suits, Gowns, Dresses, Wraps, Blouses and the very smartest Millinery are displayed in what is said to be the best equipped establishment of its kind in the world-having every known convenience for the comfort of its patrons, and where one may make selections with all of the privacy of one's own home.

If you have not already visited this "Store Beautiful" do so now, when the newest Spring importations are arriving on every steamer-you are as welcome when "shopping-to-see" as when "shopping-to-buy."

The success of this store even in the short time that it has been open proves that it is filling a long-felt want with the buying public of New York-exclusive Fashions at sensible prices.

Store closed today, Wednesday, February 22d.
